Seeing our Responsibilities for World Poverty

~ Dr. Stephen Esquith, Dean of Residential
College Arts & Humanities

Hunger Banquet: Experiencing the Size of One Another's Burdens

Session Testimonials

I appreciate how Steve framed today's learning – he began with information and then guided us with what we would NOT be addressing (legal, political, etc) and then drawing us to our role of global citizens regarding the issue of poverty. His questions motivated us to dig deeply in our discussions.

The quote from Mother Teresa – If I look at the mass, I will never act – great one!

Cultural differences create different emotional connections.

I plan to use photos to stimulate classroom discussion.

The “banquet” was a great way of making us think.

During the banquet, I felt guilty to be in the small group of advantage people.

I will definitely do the hunger banquet in my classes!
